at heart. Thirty-nine are anxious to vote for Blaine and the other seven delegates are dead set against bim. I do not know to whom Sherman would telegraph his wishes, but it would be just like him to embarrase Foraker by sending his orders to him. If Sherman withdraws, and either McKiniey or Foraker wants to pose as a candidate, they can command the vote of the delegation, but with no Ohio man in the race 39 votes will flop over to Blaine and stick to him."

Alleged Letter from Senator Ingalis. CHICAGO, June 23 .- The Daily News prints the following letter from Senator John J. Ingalls, received by a member of the Kansas delegation in the Republican convention:

Washington, June 16.

Yours of the 18ths at hand. It does not make much difference who is nominated, in my judgment. The candidate will cut but a small figure in the fight. We can elect anybody, or we shall fail. The least conspicuous and therefore the least complicated man will be the best—somebody like Hayes in 1876. Among all the men named there is not one "leader;" no one whose personal or historical relations to the people would make a difference of 1,000 votes in the canvasa. Sherman, Allison, Harrison, etc., have records that would be awkward on the tariff, the currency, the Chinese question. Depew's connection with railroads and corporations would be a heavy load, especially in the agricultural States. We might as well neminate Gould or Vanderbilt at once. My impression is that Alger or Gresnam come nearer filling the bill than any of the others, with some fellow like Phelps, of New Jersey, who could reach the conservative forces of the East and get contributions from the manufacturers and Wall Street. But you can judge better than I what is best, after consulting with the delegates. I have the use of the wire during the convention, by the courtesy of the company, and you can therefore telegraph me fully at all times if anything of interest transpires. Truly yours, John J. Ingalls. WASHINGTON, June 16.

special in Philadelphia Press. The Sherman managers, and most of all Sen-ator Quay, are here for the purpose of having a controlling influence in the nomination. If they cant't get Sherman, which now seems practically impossible, they will take anyone so that they can keep their feet and get the credit of having led in the nomination. For twenty-four hours they have secretly canvassed Blaine, and it has been known to a very few on the inside that the been known to a very few on the inside that the Sherman managers have concluded that if Sherman must be beaten it had better be done with Braine than any of the multitude of candidates in the field. Sherman could yield to that with less feeling of chagrin, and his managers might find something or a landing place there where they might not elsewhere. As a shrewd observer expressed it to-night, Sherman could affect to be heaten with Blaine. Sherman could afford to be beaten with Blaine, but he could not afford to be beaten by any of those now in the field. For this reason, and be-cause this way out has been freely talked over by half a dozen of the inside Sherman men, it should not surprise anybody to see the Ohio men and Semtor Quay, with his Pennaylvania following, leading a break for Blaine as soon as they have fairly tested their favorite in the balto which they could carry their delegates un-broken, and a break to him would at once sweep the field of every other candidate.

Who Was the Patriot?

Lynch, the colored ex-Congressman from Mississippi, who also seconded the Gresham nomination, stepped on a tack about half way through. He mentioned the name of Harrison, and quick as though his voice had been reflected on a mirror an enthusiastic Hoosier in a proscenium box flashed out a gigantic red fan with his favorite candidate's name upon it big enough for everybody to red. Everybody did, and the tumult of yells for Harrison quite drowned the scattering cries for Gresham. Indiana stood up in a solid block and cheered. One fat little man in the front row of the delegation was alone equal to an ovation. He had a tan in one hand, a flag in the other, and he waved them both. He had a mouth built to fit a large building and he opened it until his wisdom teeth took part in the display of his enthusiasm and his trim side-whiskers were the mere parenthesis of a yell. It was a great occasion for everybody but Lynch, who stumbled ineffectively through the remainder of his speech in nervous expectation that the man with the overwhelmexpectation that the man with the overwhelming fan would spring it on him again. McCall, of Massachusetts, and Rector, of Texas, also seconded Judge Greenam's nomination, but Mr. McCall did not say anything and nobody could hear what Rector said.

The Gresham and Bristow Booms.

The parallel between the Gresham movement and that in favor of Benjamin H. Bristow in 1876 is remarkably close, even to the votes in the convention. Like Gresham, Bristow was in the Cabinet durier a part of an administration, Gresham being Postmaster-general for about a year and a half and Secretary of the Treasury for a month under President Arthur, while Bristow was Secretary of the Treasury for a month more than two years during the presidency of Gen. Grant Each was antagonized by the "machine," the working Republicans, and neither had skillful leadership in the management of his boom. The following shows the vote received by each in the convention on the first three ballots.

First Second Third ballot, ballot, ballot, On the four 'n ballot Bristow obtained 126 votes. That was his highest point. He dropped to 114 on the fifth ballot, to 111 on the sixth, and to 21 on the seventh, when Hayes got the

A New Yorker Made Weary.

Senator W. W. Bramam, of Albany, said last night: 'Chicago will never have another Repub-lican national convention if New York can pre-vent it. We did nid not know Illinois had a candidate, or we never would have come to Chicago. It is an outrage that a deliberative body should be handicapped as this one has been here. The convention has been packed with claquers for a certain candidate. We have been treated discourteously by the men in charge, and the very success of the party has been jeopardized. New York was naturally kindly disposed toward any man who was in Chester A. Arthur's Cabinet, but we came here knowing that Gresh-Cabinet, but we came here knowing that Gresham was a political impossibility in New York, made so by the New York Post, the New York Times, Harper's Weekly, and the Chicago Tribune. Still, we find the convention hall packed by his backers, employing efforts to hinder all other candidates, and to-night we find this stump-speech foisted upon us in the convention."

"Rushing the Growler" in Politics. Chicago Herald

One of the striking features of the Gresham parade on Thursday evening was a crowd of Italian street sweepers, who carried shovels and tin dinner pails behind a banner, which bore the suprising inscription, "Vote for Judge Gresham, the workingman's friend." There were about one hundred and fifty men in the line, and with their tin pails filled with stones they made a terrific noise. Two rather observant newsboys were watching the procession with eager interest, and at length one of them inquired: "Wat are dose fellers wid de tin pails?"

"Oh," replied the other, with a positiveness born of experience, "dere only a lot of 80-cent

thicago Special.

The Gresham movement failed here at the beginning of the week from lack of organization. The local feeling was strong for him but the thousands of citizens of Chicago who want him had no way of impressing their feeling upon other delegates except by a general hurrab, which soon becomes monotonous and tiresome. The influence of the Tribune and Inter Ocean was discounted, and all good supporters of the other candidates have been warned against it. I know of one esteemed member of a New England delegation opposed to Gresham who piously preserves his mind from any undue influence by purchasing each day an anti-Gresham Demo-

Eleventh-Hour Advice to Chicagoans.

Be polite to the stranger who is here. If he stops you on the street and asks you where a certain street is, tell him. Go with him, if you have time, and show it to him. If he asks you what "that big building" is, tell him the truth about it. Don't tell him that you own it, or that you own anything. Be good to him. He appreciates politeness in the man who lives in the town. Don't laugh at the stranger. You have not always been smart yourself.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

DETROIT, Mich., June 23 .- The Indianapolis players went up to Recreation Park, to-day, deermined that if earnest, hard work would prevent it they would not leave the home of the champions without at least one scalp dangling from their belt. They did play with vim and earnestness, but it was no use. The Detroits were out for four straights and would not be denied. Shreve pitched hard, but the sluggers just lined out his delivery at will. On the other hand Conway made the visitors exceedingly weary. They were utterly unable to place the ball safely. The hit made by Buckley was a high one to left, and had Twitchell shaken out a few more reefs in running for it he would have spoiled that. The two runs credited to the visitors were made on Buckley's hit, a horrible fumble by Rowe and a frightfully wild throw by Brouthers. Hanlon knocked out a home run the third Twitchell made a double, followed by Conway's four-bagger in the fifth. In the sixth Thompson's single, Hines's "yellow" muff of Ganzell's fly and Twitchell's single yielded two runs. In the seventh, Bennett's double, Richardson's single and Rowe's baser gave two more. In the eigth Twitchell's triple and singles by Hanlon and Bennett, Conway's hit by a pitched ball, two sacrifices and a passed ball gave three runs. In the ninth, Ganzell's home run, Twitchell's double and Hanlon's single yielded the final

It is said that negotiations are now pending for the sale of the Louisville franchise and play-ers to the Buffalo management. Buffalo, with one of the poorest teams in her league, is draw-ing larger crowds than any other club in it. The management recognizes this fact and is willing to pay big money for a good team. The Buffalos are strongest in the positions in which the Louisvilles are weakest, and their union should result in the formation of a team able to hold its own with any club in the Association. The one thing that stands in the way of the deal is the 50-cent tariff. Buffalo is essentially a "quarter" town, as the people who ran a League club there have every reason to remember. The Association magnates may, despite Mr. Byrne, vote to reduce the tariff. Should they do so, Buffalo will be an Association city next President Young relates an amusing incident growing out of an appeal for an opinion in a play that recently occurred during an amateur game out in Michigan. The postmaster of the town, who is an enthusiast, makes the appeal. It appears that a runner was on third and attempted to score on a hit to the infield. He was caught between third and the plate, where he dodged back and forth, being chased by almost every member of the opposing team. In the meantime the bateman had worked his way round to third, and during the excitement he score. He made a dash through the crowd of players along the third-base line and scored. A moment later one of the fielders muffed a thrown bell, and his comrade also scored. Of course and the fielding rather loose, some costly errors there was a vigorous kick, but the umpire stubeing made. Collins, on a long fly catch in the pidly declared that both runs counted. Every

A Young School-Teacher Shocked Into Con-vulsions and Death by Pranks of Boys.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 23 .- A special from Bird's-eye, Ind., gives particulars of the sudden death of Miss Josie Carroll, under the most unusual circumstances. Miss Carroll had gone out after supper to visit a near neighbor, and her younger Brother and some other boys conceived the idea of frightening her with a spook upon her return through a little dark strip of woods. About 9 o'clock the young lady started home, and when she had reached the spot one of the boys pupped from ambush, covered with a sheet, and curious gyrations of his arms a hideous her path. The affrighted girl uttered a shrill shrick and fell insensible to the ground. The boys, frightened at what they done, ran away, and when help came to the girl, a few moments later, she was found in convulsions, and died in thirty minutes. The affair created a profound sensation, as Miss Carroll was a beautiful, accomplished and very popular young school-teacher. The boys, hearing the result of their foolish prank, left the neighborhood and have not since been

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

Incorporation and Organization of the Construction Company.

DENVER, Col., June 23 .- At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Nicaragua Canal Construction Company 1t was decided to wait no longer for Congress to grant them a charter, but to incorporate immediately under the laws of Colorado. This decision was arrived at for several reasons, one being that the laws of this State give them greater scope under which to work than they could expect to get from Congress or from any other State, and another important fact is that the railway facilities of Colorado are better suited to them than any other State in the Union.

Reports from engineers now in the field were received, giving the estimated cost of the canal at $50,000,000. In order to have sufficient money to cover all expenses, the company decided to double this amount and incorporate with a capital of $100,000,000, with the head office in Denver. Among those present were Hiram Hitchcock, owner of the Fifth-avenue Hotel, New York; Frederick Billings, ex-president of the Northern Pacific; J. F. O'Shaughnessy, Southern cotton-oil producer, now of New York; Charles P. Daly. ex-chief-justice Court of Common Pleas, New York; Horace L. Hotchkiss, banker, New York; J. W. Miller, manager Boston and Providence Steamship Company, New York; Col. H. C. Taylor, United States navy; C. Ridgley Goodwin, Baltimore; Alex. T. Mason, law firm Daily, White & Mason, New York; Allen F. Hedges, New York; R. A. Lancaster, representing Louisiana stockholders; A. C. Cheney, president Garfield National Bank, New York, and Francis A. Stout, president Nicaragua Canal Company.

Directors were chosen as follows: Francis A. Stout, Hiram Hitchcock, Frederick Billings, J. F. O'Shaughnessy, Chas. P. Daly, Horace L. Hotchkiss, J. W. Miller, H. C. Taylor, C. Ridgely Goodwin, Alexander T. Mason, Allen F. Hedges, R. A. Lancaster and A. C. Cheney.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Francis A. Stout, New York; vice-president, Francis A. Stout, New York; treasurer, H. L. Hotchkiss, New York; attorneys, Daly, White & Mason.

The company decided to begin work on the canal Sept. 1, and calculated to have it completed and in operation in five years. The dipleted and in operation in five years. The directors are to take the preliminary steps and act upon the reports placed upon file at the meeting to be held at the New York office in a few days.

The route of the canal is from Graytown, on the Caribbean sea, to Brito, on the Pacific coast. It goes up the river San Juan and thence to Lake Nicaragua. The total length is almost all water, with the exception of forty miles of excavation. Its superiority to the Panama route has already been demonstrated in the press through government reports and in the discussions in Congress.

(BIG FOUR Rail- WAY THE MOST ENTHUSIASTIC EVENT OF THE CONVENTION.

Posen the order of presenting dark horses was called, a tall, slender man, with a noble head, and firmly on an Apollo-like form, was seen approaching the platform. His commanding appearance attracted all eyes, and as the cadences of his rich, full voice following the auditorium the great audience was spalled.

"Mr. Chairman, Fellow Delegates—Availability as me one who can carry Indiana, some one who can get there, is the Moses sought by this convention of a candidate person We arise to offer the name of a candidate possessing all of these qualities. Our candidate is available East, West, North and South. Our comines can carry Indiana—in fact, did carry Indiana to Chicago, 10th, 17th and 18th of June. As to the ability of the dark horse we shall mention to get these we have the evidence indisputable of the thousands who not only have seen our favorite get there, but get there with him. For thirty years he has been a winner-witter bain beaten. He will draw Democratic, Prohibitor, mu, wump and Labor votes; the German, the 1.4th, the colored—in fast he will pull all classes from a directions. He has the confidence and love of the farmers, the business man and the laborior man. Mr. Chairman and delegates, we present to this convention

"THE KANKAKEE LINE." Tremendous and long-continued appleuss. Delegate and the vast audience on their feet, swayed by the most enthusiastic moment of the convention. A voice in the gallery: "What's the matter with the Kankakeel" "Why, it's all right," comes from the 8,000 threats.
